A government panel of doctors and scientists is recommending that most women wait until 50 to get mammograms and then every two years. That conflicts with the advice of the American Cancer Society, which recommends mammograms at age 40. The experts say earlier and regular breast exams result in too many false positives.

HEALTH CARE BILL SENATE

VO :27

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid has taken the wraps off health care legislation. It's estimated to extend coverage to 94 percent of eligible Americans at a cost of $849 billion over the next decade. Initial maneuvering on the Senate floor was expected later in the week. Republicans hope to deny President Barack Obama a victory on his top domestic priority. Reid says the legislation will save lives, save money and help Medicare.

HEALTHCARE REFORM

LOURDES MELUZA. WASHINGTON, DC

PKG 2:12

Congressional budget experts say the new Senate health care bill would make a government health plan widely available. The Congressional Budget Office said Thursday that about two-thirds of the U.S. population would have a public plan available in their state, even though the Democrats' 10-year, $848-billion bill would allow states to opt out. Wide availability doesn't mean the government plan would dominate the market, however. The budget umpires are estimating only 3 million to 4 million people would sign up, partly because private insurance plans would be able to offer lower premiums.

CERVICAL CANCER TEST

BLANCA ROSA VILCHEZ. NEW YORK

PKG 2:07

For women, especially young women, new guidelines for PAP Smears suggest that annual testing may provide more risk, than benefit. They are recommending that the women don't begin PAP test before age 21. Previously, it was age 18 and women between 20 and 30, get the test every other year. It's the second time this week that major procedural changes for women specific cancer screenings have been suggested. And it's raising some eyebrows.

HEALTH CARE BILL

Senate Democratic leaders are looking ahead to a crucial test vote on health care amid indications the rank-and-file will stand together Saturday to give them the support they need. Dick Durbin of Illinois, the No. 2 Senate Democrat, said Friday that leaders weren't assuming anything and were working to bring the caucus together ahead of Saturday's vote to begin debate on their health overhaul bill. Two of three moderate holdouts have indicated in recent days that they will vote with fellow Democrats on the procedural vote.

GAS PRICES FALL TO BEGIN BUSY TRAVEL WEEK

VO :27

Retail gasoline prices headed downward to begin one of the country's busiest travel weeks, with more than 33 million people expected to hit the road for the Thanksgiving holiday. Americans are remaining closer to home because of anxiety about the economy and demand for gasoline is weaker now than it was last year at this time. That is telling because a gallon of gasoline then cost only $1.93 as the economic crisis unfolded in 2008. Unlike last year, however, gas is not falling sharply and though prices fell overnight, it still cost $2.64 per gallon on average, according to auto club AAA, Wright Express and Oil Price Information Service.

OCTOBER HOME SALES RISE 10.1 PCT FROM SEPTEMBER

LUIS MEGID / SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

PKG 2:00

Home resales far exceeded expectations last month, surging to the highest level in 21/2 years as first-time buyers rushed to take advantage of an expiring tax credit. The National Association of Realtors says sales rose 10.1 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 6.1 million in October, from a downwardly revised pace of 5.54 million in September. It was the highest sales level since February 2007. Sales, which were nearly 24 percent above last year's level, had been expected to rise to an annual pace of 5.65 million, according to economists surveyed by Thomson Reuters. The median sales price was $173,100 down 7.1 percent from a year earlier, and off 1.6 percent from September.

DEMS READY TO GO-IT-ALONE ON HEALTH CARE

LOURDES MELUZA/ WASHINGTON, DC

PKG 2:06

A leading Senate Democrat said Monday his party is determined to push through a health care overhaul bill with or without Republican support because the "system is broken." "We prefer to go at it with Republicans if we can reach compromises in some areas," said Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y. "But we're not going to not pass a bill." Schumer dueled with Republican Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison on a network morning news show in the wake of a key Senate vote Saturday night that advanced a 10-year, $959 billion health bill to full debate. Hutchison argued that "you're going to put taxes and mandates on business" that would be a drag on an economy still struggling to recover from recession.

IMMIGRANT NEW LAY

ENRIQUE TEUTALO. MIAMI, FLORIDA

PKG 2:00

Gov. Jan Brewer, flanked by key state legislators, reacted with shock Tuesday to a lawsuit by cities and towns and accused the local officials of coddling illegal immigrants at state expense. But the lawsuit disputes how state officials enacted the wide-ranging law, not the substance of the law itself. At issue is a lawsuit filed with the state Supreme Court Monday by the League of Arizona Cities and Towns. It argues that the Legislature unconstitutionally approved policy changes that affect local development practices as well as how cities enforce requirements that people show proof of citizenship to receive benefits. The measures were included in a budget bill lawmakers approved this summer during a special session called to deal with the state budget deficit and a possible sales-tax referendum.

SLOW ECONOMY RECOVERY

VO: 19

Hope for a strong economic rebound is fading Growth last quarter was less than initially estimated. The Federal Reserve doesn't expect the economy to pick up steam until 2011, despite huge stimulus spending and low interest rates. The economy is improving according to most yardsticks, but fresh evidence emerged Tuesday that the path to revival could resemble a Thanksgiving holiday road trip -- long, slow and stressful. Hopes for a strong rebound from the recession are fading as the government Tuesday downsized its estimate of economic growth in the third quarter to 2.8% from its earlier calculation of 3.5%.

TAMIFLU REPORT

VO :24

The World Health Organization says isolated cases of drug-resistant swine flu in Britain and the United States have not changed the agency's assessment of the disease. It says Tamiflu remains highly effective against the vast majority of H1N1 cases. Four cancer patients in a North Carolina hospital tested positive last week for a type of the flu that was resistant to Tamiflu. Five people at a British hospital also didn't respond to the drug after contracting the flu. WHO flu chief Dr. Keiji Fukuda said Thursday that investigations were under way, but that the American and British patients for whom Tamiflu did not work had severely weakened immune systems.

BLACK FRIDAY

Shopping mall operators say more shoppers are making purchases in cash and with debit cards today, instead of credit. One man carrying two bulging Macy's bags in Chicago said with cash, "you don't have the hangover in January." After a year of concentrating spending on basic necessities, some shoppers have been taking advantage of post-Thanksgiving deals on toys and TVs. But worries about jobs were on the minds of many shoppers, as they looked for bargains. At the Macy's flagship store in New York, which opened at 5 a.m., dozens of women were rummaging through a bin of purses marked 40 percent off the original price.

HISPANICS AND HEALTHCARE

LOURDES MELUZA. WASHINGTON, DC

PKG 2:38

The Health debate starts Monday November 30th preview of the debate as it relates to issues that affect Hispanics. Although Hispanics are the largest ethnic minority population in the United States, they are underserved by the health-care system.

Hispanics are less likely to seek and receive health-care services, which might contribute to their poorer health status and higher rates of morbidity and mortality. To assess differences in access to health-care and preventive services between Hispanics and non-Hispanics, CDC analyzed 2001--2002 data from the Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System surveys.

SENATE DEBATES HEALTH CARE REFORM

VO :26

A very partisan debate over health care is under way in the Senate. But the arguments began today even before it formally opened. Democrats say a Congressional Budget Office assessment of the costs show the bill would lower premiums for "the vast majority of Americans." Republicans say most will either see no significant savings or end up paying more.

HOME FORECLOSURES

JAIME GARCIA / LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

PKG 2:05

The Obama administration will crack down on mortgage companies that are failing to do enough to help borrowers at risk of foreclosure, as part of a broad effort to boost participation in its mortgage assistance program. The Treasury Department said Monday it will withhold payments from mortgage companies that aren't doing enough to make the changes permanent. Officials will monitor the largest of the 71 participating mortgage companies via daily progress reports.
